TRAMPS WEAR THEM.

Eight Knights of the Rock With Lewelling Buttons.

BROUGHT INTO POLICE COURT TODAY.

One by One They Were Dismissed by Judge Essminger and Told to Go Away.

The police seem to have captured a Populist excursion train Saturday night sleeper and all. There were eight worn and weary looking tramps with opinions about the moral and financial condition of the country and Lewelling buttons in court this morning.

They had been captured by the police while sleeping in a box car in the Rock Island yards Saturday night and each and every one of them had been over from Leavenworth or some other seaport town to hear the speech that "our dear governor delivered himself of Saturday.

The first man called was Joe Phelps who had been guilty of absorbing more than his share of "white horse." He acknowledged it like an honest though poor little man and accepted his fine of five dollars almost cheerfully.

Mr. Reynolds has also fallen into the same bad habit and the hands of the police. It was the second time in the last six months, and Judge Essminger's watchful eye had him spotted. He will lead us his presence for ten days.

Charles Merrill, who allowed that his home was in "cultured" St. Louis, and that he had been pegging away at his trade of shoemaking to keep upper and sole together, whenever he had an opportunity, told a tale of sorrow and was discharged.

Edgar Webster was not in court for the first time. His behavior before the bar was a regular handbook of court etiquette, and the judge thought the city needed him for ten days.

J. J. Williams is a Leavenworth blacksmith, according to his own story. He was over here to hear Mr. Lewelling explain how it was Saturday, and had gone to sleep in a box car with the others. He was sorry for it, and was in full sympathy with the governor's tramp circular.
He promised that he would get out of the city as soon as possible, and the judge let him go.

Charlie Smith was in the car also. He was a cabinet maker on his way from Pueblo to St. Joseph, and the judge thought the city could get along without him so he discharged Charlie.

Fred Jones was on his way to Chicago from Colorado. He had been sick and looked it, so the judge let him go.

Joe Barnes was among the number whose names were on the list. He had been rudely disturbed by the unfriendly police.
He was a miner and was on his way to Pittsburg, Kas., where he expected to get work in the mines. The judge took his word for it and let him go.

Tom Carroll came in next with a smile on his face and a Lewelling button in his coat. The smile in his stomach had been cured by a day's confinement in the jail.
He was also from Leavenworth and had come over to hear Mr. Lewelling and Mr.
Harper talk about the damnable monopoly system. They may have accounted for his comatose condition when the police found him in the car. The judge looked at the Lewelling button and let him go with a blessing.

Mr. James Thompson is a man who has only one leg of his own, so he is to be pardonable, perhaps, for the unconquerable predilection he has for pulling other people's legs. James is a true knight of the brotherhood, and leads his pitiful and the influence of his crutch to their appetites. In other words, he devotes his time and his infirmities to a collection from the general public for the purchase of whitehorse, with which to drive cars away from the score or more of his brothers that loaf about the City park spasmodically. The judge took all these things into consideration and made the fine $50, with a twenty-four hour suspension of sentence. James had better get out of town before tomorrow.

BRIGHT AND WITTY.

Is Oscar Wilde's "Lady Windermere's Fan" and Is Well Handled.

"Lady Windermere's Fan" did not draw as large a house at the Grand Saturday night as was expected, nor as it deserved. The company is one of Frohman's good ones, and the play itself is a splendid one. A good many people who attended the play Saturday night have a much better opinion of Oscar Wilde's ability as a writer and philosopher than they ever entertained before. The dialogue is particularly bright, and for the most part was in competent hands.
The tone of the piece, while Mr. Wilde undoubtedly endeavored to teach a moral, carries very little moral with it. At times the piece is suggestive to an unpleasant degree, though bright and probably an exact representation of the manner in which the present English aristocracy behaves itself unhampered by conscience.

The company is an evenly balanced one and the presentation undoubtedly gave general satisfaction. Miss Oliver, in the role of Mrs. Erynn, the adventuress, is bright, vivacious and piquant. Her work is done with a vim and made a very good impression on the audience. Miss Gilviary as Lady Windermere, is undoubtedly a good actress, but her work of Saturday night lacked naturalness to some degree.

The mere men in the cast had little to do and seemed to have been entirely forgotten by the author.

Altogether the entertainment was good and should have a better house tonight.

On Friday and Saturday night the Hennery-LeRoy company, formerly "Our Doris" company, will be at the Grand and will open "By Wits Outwitted," a piece that has had quite a successful run in the east, and that is now west for the first time. The Atchison papers spoke well of this company last week.

At the Topeka Theater.

The James H. Brown Dramatic company, supporting Ella Clayton, will put in this week at the Topeka theater, opening tonight with the English play, "The Black Flag."

The company has good recommendations from Atchison and Leavenworth.

SHAW, Kan., Oct. 1.—The A. H. T. A. place in the last few months. A large quantity was found at the residence of William Woods, a farmer living near here.

law, made his escape. A large posse is searching the woods for them, but they are likely to make their escape to in which not less than 50,000 children will participate.

Floats bearing representations of "temperance in its various phases" will be in line. Guards will be placed along the

REORGANIZATION DELAY.

The Colorado Midland Prefers Operation Independent of the Santa Fe.

It is feared that the Santa Fe reorganization has received a set-back by a circular issued by the bondholders of the Colorado Midland railway, a branch of the Santa Fe. This circular requests stockholders of the Colorado Midland not to consent to depositing their holdings with the Santa Fe protective reorganization committee or any other plan advanced by them. It is urged that the Colorado Midland be reorganized independently of the Santa Fe proper.

PETE KLINE'S STORY

Said to Have Been Sold By Him
For $500.

APPEARED IN SUNDAY'S PAPERS

Pete Writes a Letter in Which He Says the State Administration Run-ned Him Out of $4,500.

The Kansas City Times, Kansas City Star and other papers, yesterday morning published a three-column letter from Pete W. Kline, the Kansas City, Kan. lottery man, in which he told in detail how he had paid money to the Populist administration for protection to the Louisiana lottery with the understanding that the other lotteries were to be suppressed. The story was offered to the Kansas City Journal, but it refused to publish it.

Kline says he paid $4,500 to Fred Close, who represented Governor Lewell-ing, and that Attorney General Little got $4,000 of this money.

Governor Lewelling and General Little are at Olathe today, and Fred Close is at Lebanon, Smith county.

Secretary Sample of the Populist state central committee, says this Pete Kline letter is what Kline and Nels Acers tried to get the Populists to hire them to suppress ten days ago.

Nels Acers came to Topeka about ten days ago and had an interview with Fred Close, in which he said it would be a good thing if the administration would have a letter suppressed which the Republican state central committee was trying to get hold of. Acers told Close what the letter contained, and he said he would not give him $10 to suppress it.

Acers then went to Attorney General Little and General Little said he would not give him 10 cents to suppress it.

Acers then went down to Medicine Lodge to see Jerry Simpson. Legate tried to get Jerry to use his influence to get the state administration to suppress the letter, but the administration could not be induced to put up any money to suppress the letter. Secretary Sample says they did not consider the information in the letter worth suppressing, and, anyway, they had information that since the first of August the Republican committee had been trying to get Kline to write such a letter for use in the campaign, for which they were to pay him $500. Sample says, however, that Nels Acers and Jim Legate never specified what amount they wanted to suppress Kline's letter.

Kline was in Topeka several days last week and the deal by which his letter was to be suppressed by the Republican state central committee was made at the Copeland.

It is said that the committee paid $500 for the letter, although Secretary Bristow denies that the letter cost the committee anything.
